Writing Their Own Destiny
Taking the Next Step
Ride for Independence
Hartford Marathon
As 2020 approaches and we anticipate the 60th anniversary of Fidelco Guide Dogs, we can’t help but reflect on the tireless dedication of all who have helped us along the way. Loyal donors, remarkable clients, and dedicated staff, volunteers, and ambassadors from every walk of life have given unquantifiable amounts of time, energy, and resources to fulfill one life-changing mission.

The unique and individual stories of our clients’ partnerships with their Fidelco German Shepherd guide dogs could fill thousands of pages. That’s only possible because of people like you who are committed to changing lives. We can merely speculate the “numbers”: the safe crossings, human connections, indelible bonds, and dreams achieved with Fidelco guide dogs leading the way.

It’s humbling to know how many lives have been touched, and how many rely on us now and in the future to ensure their safety and independence. We think our founders, Robbie and Charlie Kaman, would be proud of the longevity and power of their legacy. Please donate today. With your support, we will continue meeting the needs of those we proudly serve for the next 60 years and beyond. Thank you.

Warm regards,

The Fidelco Guide Dogs Staff
WRITING THEIR OWN DESTINY.

Fidelco guide dog "Corey" is equally comfortable attending movie premieres as she is riding the subway. Her partner, Kody K., is a New York City-based author who published her first book, The DUFF—a New York Times and USA Today bestseller later made into a major motion picture—as a senior in high school. Together, Kody and Corey live and thrive in the city that never sleeps.

Kody grew up poor in a small town in Kentucky without mass transit and little accessibility for someone with vision loss. The lack of entertainment in the form of internet and cable at home pushed Kody to foster a love of storytelling as a little girl. As she got older, putting pen to paper and writing the imaginative stories that took shape in her mind became a passion, transporting Kody into worlds of her own creation. Ironically, before Kody discovered her love for writing, she was a “reluctant reader”; the only books accessible to her were in large print, and geared toward younger audiences. This changed (dramatically!) when more advanced books became accessible to Kody. She remembers this as a critical turning point in her life.

After graduating from high school, Kody attended Ithaca College for two years. With her career in full swing, Kody made the decision to move to New York City to focus on writing. At this point, she was still using a white cane to travel.

“I’m not sure exactly why it hit me one day. I had considered getting a guide dog in the past, but the thought hadn't entered my mind in a long time,” Kody remembers.

“I felt I was getting by with my cane. But something urged me to apply to Fidelco in the summer of 2012. I knew my guide dog would have to be a German Shepherd, no question. It came down to Fidelco because other schools’ training culminated in a final New York City ‘test walk,’ but I needed that every day! New York City is like a giant obstacle course. So the idea of Fidelco training me in my home environment was hugely appealing.”
Kody’s placement specialist, Eric Gardell (featured on pages 4 and 5), had her try out two quick-paced guide dogs whose gaits and personalities were well-suited for city living. But the first time Kody met Corey, she knew. Kody travels extensively for work with Corey leading the way. The pair has ventured to France, Germany, Scotland, and all over the United States. In 2016, Kody and her best friend, Kate—who also has a guide dog—traveled to Europe together. They explored Berlin, Edinburgh, and Paris. “We were able to completely absorb the experience without having to worry about navigating places we’d never been,” Kody remembers. “We had the best time.”

Kody has published seven books since The DUFF. She is the co-founder of Disability in Kidlit—an online forum that focuses on the portrayal of disability in middle grade and young adult literature. She is also a teacher at the Gotham Writers Workshops in New York City.

FIDELCO TIMELINE

1960
Fidelity Breeders Cooperative is founded; Fidelco German Shepherd guide dogs are provided to existing guide dog organizations for placement with people who are blind or visually impaired.

1981
Fidelco Guide Dog Foundation, Inc. is formally established as a guide dog breeding and training organization, and the first five Fidelco German Shepherd guide dogs are placed.

1991
Fidelco undergoes a major expansion to accommodate the organization’s growing needs; thousands of square feet are added to the kennel, administrative, and training areas.

1996
Fidelco establishes its Apprentice Training Program, a rigorous three-year program in which apprentices train a minimum of 24 dogs before becoming certified Trainer/Instructors.
This past summer, Doug Fuchs, Vice President of Guide Dog Services, and Tommy Mourad, Vice President of Guide Dog Training, traveled to Europe to visit guide dog breeding and training facilities in Warwickshire, England and Lezoux, France.

The trip was made in the spirit of collaboration; sharing information with other guide dog organizations nationally and internationally significantly enhances the quality of Fidelco’s programs and services. Guide Dogs for the Blind National Breeding Centre in Warwickshire was the first stop. The Centre is the only guide dog school in the UK. Doug and Tommy reviewed data, best practices, breeding techniques, and the sharing of breeding stock.

Next, Doug and Tommy traveled to Lezoux, France, where they spent another busy day with staff from the French Breeding Cooperative which provides guide dogs to all guide dog schools in France. Doug and Tommy met with their medical and breeding teams, but the highlight of the trip was seeing “Paris,” a 6-month-old female German Shepherd Dog who is being raised for Fidelco by a French puppy raising family!

By working collaboratively with organizations like the French Breeding Cooperative, Fidelco will enhance its canine colony while improving upon the “breed within a breed” that is its hallmark. As the only guide dog organization that solely breeds, raises, and trains German Shepherd Dogs to be used as guide dogs, Fidelco is considered an expert on the breed.

COMING TOGETHER.

This year, Fidelco participated in two important conferences—the National Federation for the Blind Conference in Rochester, NY, and the American Council of the Blind Conference in Las Vegas, NV. Fidelco Trainer/Instructors interacted with staff from many other guide dog organizations, and shared information about Fidelco’s programs and services. Fidelco clients were in attendance as well, offering first-hand accounts of how their guide dogs have powerfully impacted their lives.
Fidelco staff members Lindsay Kababik and Eric Gardell are taking on new roles within the organization, leveraging their many years of experience to set the bar even higher for key programs. Lindsay is now Training Department Supervisor, and Eric is Puppy Raising Department Supervisor. We checked in with them both and asked them to reflect on their collective 28 years at Fidelco and to speculate about the future as our 60th anniversary approaches.

What’s your favorite part of your new job?

LK: Being able to watch our dogs with their trainers for their blindfold evaluations is my favorite part of my job. I like seeing their similarities and differences, and then helping to match them with our clients. I also enjoy seeing the different handling styles of each trainer which helps me to be a better instructor for the apprentices.

EG: My favorite part of my job has to be my mornings with the three- to eight-week-old puppies. After that, it’s the work I do in the classes and the one-on-ones with our volunteer puppy raisers and their puppies.

Where do you see Fidelco in the next 60 years?

LK: In the future, I would like to see Fidelco continue to improve our best practices in every aspect from the breeding program, to training and placements, and fundraising. Focusing on the quality of our dogs, while being innovative and creative, will help us to better serve our clients into the future.

EG: Fidelco will still be placing German Shepherd Dogs throughout the United States and Canada, hopefully placing 50–100 dogs annually.
What do you think people who may not be familiar with guide dog work or our dogs may be surprised to learn?

LK: One of the most popular questions I receive is, “How does the dog know when to cross the street?” Most people don’t know our clients are actually responsible for deciding when it’s safe to cross the street. It’s then the dog’s responsibility to refuse the “forward” command if it’s not safe to cross. A good way to think of the dog/handler relationship is that the handler is the pilot and the dog is the navigator. It’s definitely a team effort!

EG: I think most people would be surprised to learn how different all the guide dog programs are from one another. Because of Fidelco’s In-Community Placement model, we can place up to two dogs at a time. Other larger organizations can place 10 to 20 dogs at a time because clients are trained at a residential training facility.

What’s your favorite memory of Fidelco in all the years you’ve been part of the organization?

LK: I would say my favorite memories are when I finish training a dog and we make a good match, and the team becomes very successful. Hearing the client say how much the dog has changed their life makes it all worth it. There is nothing better than training a dog that goes off to do their job to the best of their ability, and improves our clients’ lives!

EG: I would have to say my favorite memory is working with our founder, Robbie Kaman, and knowing how well-respected she was in the German Shepherd community. Just knowing how people in the German Shepherd world thought of Robbie made it an honor to work with and learn from her.

The very first dog I trained worked in The Pentagon, and I was able to visit him and see him go right past the security area while I had to go through all the metal detectors and security guards. I was very proud.

AMBASSADOR SPOTLIGHT.

Fidelco ambassadors carry our mission forward by passionately raising awareness in their schools, communities, and beyond. Rising ninth-grader, Meredith D., chose Fidelco Guide Dogs as her “March Madness” charity, part of her school’s successful read-a-thon initiative which places books in a “bracket” in the spirit of the NCAA basketball tournament.

In her appeal letter to the March Madness Committee, Meredith wrote: “My grandfather was a front-line soldier in the Korean War. He held a deep appreciation for the power of service dogs after witnessing many injured veterans needing assistance. He saw how dogs could truly lift a person’s spirits, and help them live their life again. In his 40s, my grandfather was diagnosed with Type 2 Diabetes and then eye disease at 65, which completely robbed him of his vision by the time he was 84. Though he never had a service dog, my grandfather began to gain an even greater appreciation for them—especially for Fidelco German Shepherd guide dogs.

I chose Fidelco for my March Madness charity because I want to give someone with vision loss the opportunity to live fully with a Fidelco guide dog. Toward the end of my grandfather’s life, I witnessed the limitations he felt as he lost his vision, and hope others like him can regain their independence with these incredible dogs.”

We are deeply grateful Meredith honored her grandfather’s legacy by choosing Fidelco Guide Dogs as her charity of choice.

EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT: STANLEY BLACK & DECKER.

As part of a hands-on “In-Service Day” offered at Fidelco, employees from Stanley Black and Decker visited our Bloomfield campus to create new training tools for Fidelco’s Bio-Sensory Program. This program exposes puppies to diverse stimuli beginning at just three days old, to prepare them for the outside world.

The team built a new “puppy bridge,” various under footings, and stabilizing bases for airline seats recently donated by Delta Airlines. These airline seats are especially important in training successful guide dogs as exposing pups to travel situations helps ensure they can one day lead their partners wherever life takes them.

If you are interested in learning more about In-Service Days for your company or organization, please email us at events@fidelco.org.

A STORY YOU HAVE TO HEAR.

This past summer, Fidelco Guide Dogs was featured on Connecticut Public Radio’s Where We Live. Bill D., a Fidelco client recently matched with his second guide dog, “Lyric,” was interviewed as part of the three-part episode “Guide Dogs Take the Meaning of ‘Man’s Best Friend’ to a New Level.” Listeners were invited into our world, hearing first-hand from clients, puppy raisers, and training staff.

Bill needed a dog that could be unfazed by riding in a plow truck in the winter and later surrounded by hundreds of kids at the summer pool. As the Director of Parks and Recreation in Newington, CT, Bill requires a guide dog that can keep up and easily transition, like his first guide dog, “Izaac,” did for eight years before he retired a few months ago. Izaac was fittingly trained by Bill’s daughter, Laura, and is perhaps the most profound “gift” a child could give to a parent. Izaac has embarked on the next chapter of his life—enjoying a quiet retirement in the home he shares with Bill and his wife, Susan.

Lyric has big shoes to fill, but she’s already picking up where Izaac left off. At the time of the NPR interview, Bill was just weeks into his new partnership with Lyric. He poignantly reflected, “It’s emotional. It’s stressful. It’s probably the top three hardest things I’ve ever done in my life. Izaac was just my pal. He stayed within four feet of me almost 24/7, so you build this tremendous bond, and then you have to retire him. You feel like you’re betraying your first dog, but I know it’s the best thing for him.”

This bittersweet journey—from guide dog to beloved retired guide dog—plays out again and again for so many Fidelco clients. It’s a transition inherently mixed with sadness and joy. For puppy raisers, too, these emotions intermingle. Lyric was lovingly raised by Fidelco staff member Lauren Booth and her mother, Carol, who recently passed away. She shares, “People always ask, ‘How do you give them up?’ You meet one client whose life is impacted so positively by having a guide dog, there’s no way you wouldn’t let the dog you raised go. Because you know the person’s life is going to change, and there’s nothing greater.”

Bill echoes the sentiment of countless Fidelco clients when he says, “I tell puppy raisers that they change people’s lives. As a Parks and Recreation Director, I can change people’s lives for four, six hours, whatever. But you change someone like me for eight years or more. I can’t put into words how thankful I am. There’s nothing like it.”

While there are many great charities, the tireless dedication and work of Fidelco Guide Dog Foundation sets it apart. Their special breed of German Shepherd guide dogs provides immediate independence, positively changing the lives of people who are blind,” remarks Peter Krause, Suburban Subaru President.

MIKE R. AND “SUBI” UPDATE.

In January 2019, Fidelco client Mike R. was partnered with his fifth guide dog, “Subi,” who was named in honor of Fidelco’s longtime partnership with Suburban Subaru.

This past summer, Mike and Subi safely and confidently traveled to Skarnes, Norway, where Mike won the gold medal in the Vision Impaired Men’s Slalom at the 14th Barbara Bolding/Jim Grew Fund Disabled Water Ski World Championships. Mike is Director of Information Technology Auditing at Anadarko Petroleum Corporation, and has completed over 15 marathons. He is a five-time member of the U.S. Adaptive Water Ski Team, and lives with his wife, daughter, and son in Texas.
